From Buckhead to Johns Creek and all the way out around Lake Oconee, Georgians love their mansions.

Homes inspired from traditional antebellum architecture, but showcase hip modern tech savvy features, can be seen in the Peach State's most elegant neighborhoods.

This week's home of the week is the European Traditional style gated estate, which is currently listed by Kay Quigley of Quigley Realty Group at Atlanta Fine Homes Sotheby's International Realty for $5.5 million.

The 9,559-square-foot home sits on nearly 2.5 acres and was built in 2007. It has five bedrooms, five full bathrooms, two half bathrooms and features a grand entrance, 13-foot and 12-foot ceilings, an outdoor living with a loggia, a pool, gardens and a screen porch. Additionally, the home features include a Crestron electronic system, an elevator, a greenhouse, a generator and a well.

Atlanta Business Chronicle will continue to feature the state's most elegant homes.
